

FedEx Picks Aljex

Akron Ohio, October 1, 2007. FedEx Custom Critical, Inc., a subsidiary of FedEx Corp. (NYSE: FDX), has announced that they have selected Aljex Software for their TMS system for the new FedEx Truckload Brokerage Division.

The new company, officially opened for business Jan 2, 2007, offers customers full-service truckload brokerage solutions. Options range from brokerage solutions for regular, dry-van freight, to oversized pieces requiring flatbed trailers.

“FedEx Truckload Brokerage gives customers another choice on their freight-shipping menu,” said John Colonna, managing director, FedEx Truckload Brokerage. “We have spent the past 12 months developing relationships with the top carriers in the country to ensure we deliver the quality and reliability that our customers expect from FedEx.” “During that period, we looked at all the leading TMS software; we also considered creating our own. Aljex won by a large margin.”

FedEx is now using Aljex Ultra, a web-based TMS system that includes SmartSearch®, a revolutionary load matching and tendering system. “We chose Aljex for a lot of reasons, including: great reporting--it’s extremely user friendly—and it has SmartSearch. It has exceeded our expectations.”
